Artists as Curators is a short exhibition to commemorate the opening of the new gallery, A217. This will be a group show featuring the new curators of the space. Each artist explores a variety of concepts, from internet surveillance to deconstructing architectural spaces, with the shared interest of curation bringing the artists together, which will be their future roles in the new location. This will be an opportunity for artists and individuals to get to know the curators and their artwork, exploring the exhibition space for potential future shows.
